

ABSTRACT

Technologies are disclosed for creating non-digital active images by associating specified regions, of a base image including non-digital content fixed in a tangible medium, with arbitrary digital content that can be electronically outputted upon later selection of any of the specified regions. Technologies are also disclosed for creating similar content-associated regions of a digital image, and for using the resulting digital active image, in a collaborative environment.